Yes. I was checking who the project manager was and I noticed it wasn't checked. Hopefully MiWaters will work just as well.

Oops, the 404 box was checked but I had placed an "R" in it now. Are you using CIWPIS online to look at this??

Thanks. I thought so, but it wasn't labeled a Red File on CWIPIS so I thought I should confirm.

Melanie

With a new pipeline project of this size. . . such as the Enbridge Line 6B that you had worked on (which was a red file), we had assumed this should be processed as a Red File as well due to the possible impact to Federal T&E species. Also all of the temporal wetland impacts and conversion of wetland to an herbaceous state, well over an acre. Would this not be considered a major discharge to waters of the state even though it is temporary and going to be restored?

We have had some communication on bat surveys and I believe Rover said that they were working on some more mussel surveys, in my opinion this is something USFWS will need to be included anyhow.

Hi Luke,

I was just sent the public notice for the rover pipeline. I just want to confirm that it is a red file, right?

Thanks,
